While Supplies Last

Commodities Update:

- Steel stud manufacturers are announcing another increase because of global steel mill increases. They've announced a 10% increase for April 3. Often the increase doesn't really go up that much, so we'll see what develops. Increases of 5% on July 1 and October 1 are on the horizon also.
- Panel products: After the rapid rise of the last 6 weeks, panel producers and buyers are at a standoff on both OSB and SYP plywood. Producers are clinging to the recently found price levels and buyers are stubbornly waiting for decreases.
- Dimension lumber, on the other hand, seems to be easily maintaining the increased prices of the last few weeks and even adding to it with the spring building season approaching. The feel of it is that these price levels will be with us for a while.
- Fiberglass insulation is seeing a major manufacturer (OC) announcing an increase of 8-12% effective June 1. Others are bound to follow, but even if the increase occurs, it will not affect our retails until at least July.

New Inventory Items:

- We've picked up a new metal roofing/siding vendor, Union Corrugating, at our Ilion yard. Pricing, quality and deliveries have been very good thus far. Definitely worth a closer look!

Brain Builder: Try it! See what you come up with.

A prisoner was brought before the king to be executed. The king was in a peppy mood and asked the prisoner how he would like to die. The prisoner told him and the king laughed heartily. The prisoner was released and sent on his way, alive.

What did the prisoner say?
