Commodities Update:

- We may see a price increase in fiberglass insulation that was scheduled previously this fall and was then postponed to early January.
- Steel studs are scheduled also for a 10% January 1st increase. If demand does not warrant it, any price increase will be short-lived.
- Masonry and Portland cements will increase $.40 and $.50/bg respectively on January 1st.
- No news yet, as of this printing, of a drywall increase from USG.
- Dimension lumber: all species we sell, after a short upturn, are facing downward pressure on price, some more than others.
- Panel products: OSB has continued its pricing climb, with small increases over the last few months that make the new price level very noticeable. SYP plywood, after a quick decrease, has shot back up to pre-decrease levels. With mill order files out a few weeks, this pricing will most likely last through December.

Hardware Humor:

“Hey, I understand. I gained 20 pounds myself this year.”

New Inventory Items:

- Milwaukee Tool has been ramping up its power tool accessories offering and we have been picking up some here and there:

- 12 piece recip saw set

- 5 piece recip saw set

- 40 piece drill/drive set

- Ames telescoping snow roof rake. Buy yours now. If you wait until you need it, they will be out of stock everywhere!

Words Worth Reading:

"To be able to do for oneself in one's own way was the dream which first brought some men to this land. There are a few people who confuse it with becoming rich, but money is not the American Dream and never has been. Money can be made of anything you choose, but a man's life is made of the courage, independence, decency and self-respect he learns to use."

- From Two Logs Crossing
by Walter D. Edmonds

Brain Builder: Can you hammer out the answer?

To all you foodies out there:

First, I threw away the outside and cooked the inside.
Then, I ate the outside and threw away the inside. What did I eat?
