Commodities Update:

- Dimension Lumber: (SPF, Doug Fir, SYP) seems to be starting its upward trend. Since the first of the year we're seeing small, incremental increases each week. Whether it will get to the highs of the last two years is unlikely, but I thought the same thing last year also.
- Panel products: OSB, SYP plywood and Huber products (Advantech, Zip) have begun an upward trend. It is likely we have seen the lows for the year already.
- USG Interiors announced a ceiling tile increase of 8% for February 6. USG announced an increase in Durock cement board last month and we will raise our retails this month. Gypsum, as announced, did increase and our retails now reflect the increase.
- Basement blanket insulation (6' & 8' X50') will increase by 10% effective February 1. We will also raise our retails on Fiberglass insulation by 10% on the same date. Dupont Styrofoam will increase 10% January 30. We are expecting, as previously reported, a 6% increase on Rockwool insulation products February 1.
- Lehigh Hansen, our bagged Portland and Masonry cements vendor, is rebranding its name to Heidelberg Materials.
- Stanley/Black&Decker has announced a 5.5% increase in its product line effective April 4.

Brain Builder: See if you can figure it out!

A roofer fell off a 42' ladder but didn't get hurt.
How is this possible?

Quote to Think About:

"Be a yardstick of quality. Some people aren't used to an environment where excellence is expected."

Steve Jobs

Words Worth Reading:

First one, then a few, then they all smiled back. They beamed at each other, Commander and cadets. Until the darkness was banished. And finally he spoke. "Things are strongest where they're broken," said Commander Gamache, his voice deep and calm and certain. The words entered each of the cadets. And their families. And filled the void. And then he talked about what had happened. The shattering events. And the healing. He ended his address by saying, "We are all of us marred and scarred and imperfect. We make mistakes. We do things we deeply regret. We are tempted and sometimes we give in to that temptation. Not because we are bad or weak, but because we're human. We are a crowd of faults. But know this." He stood in complete silence for a moment, the huge auditorium motionless. "There is always a road back. If we have the courage to look for it, and take it. I'm sorry. I was wrong. I don't know." He paused again. "I need help. Those are the signposts. The cardinal directions."
