Commodities Update:

- Dimension lumber: SPF lumber has seen a few weeks in a row of very noticeable increases probably due to production curtailments and the fire at a West Frazier mill among other factors. SYP dimension (and PT lumber) has increased as well during the past month and indications point to continued similar conditions for 6-8 weeks.
- Panels: SYP plywood has been steadily maintaining price-even increasing slightly recently while OSB has finally moved up slightly also.
- Clark Dietrich has announced another increase effective 2/2/26 on steel studs. The increase rate has not been specified. Usually it is 10% but last month's increase was announced late at 15%.
- USG Interiors will increase all grid suspension products by 8% on 2/9/26. Mineral fiber ceilings (like our Fissured, Radar and Eclipse tiles) and Gypsum lay-in panels will increase 5% and cast ceilings (like our Frost and Glacier tiles) 10%.
- Pella windows and doors will raise prices by an average of 4.5% on 2/9/26.
- ABC and Metal Sales will increase metal roofing/siding panels by 12% effective 2/9/26.
- The rebar market ended the year nearly 20% higher than it started. While demand is strong nationwide, it is not likely we'll see a run on supply which will keep pricing in check.

Words worth reading:

The Secret to Life

My mother died a few years ago and since then I've stayed in touch with a close friend of hers. Sheila's had a tough time getting old. She had to leave her beloved home for an assisted-living facility where she feels displaced and isolated. She went through two knee replacements and many of her friends have died.

Yet, rather than give in to sadness, Sheila is constantly working to create community in "the bin" as she calls it. She started an active theatre group, fought for a new art studio, and offers support to other residents whenever possible.

Recently she told me that, at 82, she's discovered the key to a meaningful life. Her secret is clichéd, but also profound.

Sheila's physical therapist is a young guy from Brazil who's still getting his license so charges very little. During her last session with him she said "you sit here all day and listen to old people complain. You give so much of yourself, but no one gives to you. I'd like to show you something."

Then she directed his attention to the music in the room. "That's Vivaldi," she said. "They called him The Red Priest. He was interesting and important and I'll tell you why."

By the end of the session, each of them had used their knowledge and experience to benefit the other and both were richer for it. "The secret to a meaningful life is to give," Sheila told me, adding that she didn't explain Vivaldi to hear herself "blather on" but because she truly thought it would help her therapist grow.

Whatever it is, if you give of yourself with a desire to help, you'll find the benefits are profound, permanent and immeasurably valuable.

Dad joke of the month:

I went ice fishing for the first time last weekend and, boy, I'll never do that again. We got up early, worked all day at the lake and by the time we had the hole cut for the boat it was almost time to go home!
